

RUSSIA RENOUNCES PACT WITH JAPAN

LONDON, April 5 — Russia today denounced her neutrality pact with Japan in an action believed to foreshadow her ultimate entry into the Pacific war.

Announcement of the action came a few hours after the fall of the Japanese government of Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, presumably upon the receipt of word from Moscow of the Russian action.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov announced the Soviet action to Japanese ambassador Naotaki Sato in Moscow.

As a result of the Soviet action, the Russo-Japanese five-year neutrality pact automatically expires at midnight April 24, 1946.

The Soviet action immediately opened grounds for speculation upon Soviet entering the Pacific war and moving into action her powerful far eastern Red banner army which has stood guard at the frontiers of Siberia and Manchuria since long before the outbreak of the European war.

Molotov's action was announced by Radio Moscow.

The foreign minister advised Sato, the account said, that since the pact was signed on April 13, 1941 (correct) the world situation had changed considerably.

Germany, he noted had attacked the Soviet Union and Japan has aided Germany in the war against the Soviet Union.

In addition, he said, Japan is at war against Great Britain and the United States who are the allies of the Soviet Union.

Therefore, he told Sato, the pact of neutrality "has lost its sense" and it is impossible for it to be continued.

Showdown Battle Looms On Okinawa Island

MASBATE IS CAPTURED

MacArthur Brings Philippine Campaign To Final Stage By Taking Island

By United Press
The showdown battle of southern Okinawa and the Japanese island bastion's capital city of Naha appeared to be shaping up or already mounting to full fury today.

Field reports said suddenly stiffened resistance had slowed the 10th army's advance on Okinawa to a snail's pace. The Japanese were fighting hard from well prepared positions—perhaps the lines on which they chose to undertake a stand—a little more than four miles north of Naha.

Both American and Japanese tanks were jockeying for positions. A front dispatch reported the possibility of a major tank battle, the first of the war in the Pacific, on the plain between Naha and Kaniku.

In one sector a Japanese tank congregation already had stalled the American push temporarily. A United Press correspondent on the scene said the Americans were relying on tanks now, since their high velocity, point blank fire was the best way of hitting strong enemy emplacements.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur brought the Philippines campaign to its final stage today with the seizure of Masbate island and said Japan's entire stolen empire to the south now was isolated.

35th Island Invaded

Masbate, a 1,262-square-mile island of the southeastern tip of Luzon, was the 35th island in the Philippines invaded by MacArthur's American forces. Units of the 48th division landed on Masbate Tuesday against little opposition and were rapidly securing the entire island.

Maintaining the strict blockade of the Southwest Pacific, swarms of heavy and medium bombers and fighters shuttled across the China seas from the Philippines in widespread assaults from the China coast to French Indo-China.

UMW Vice President John O'Leary said that some operators "don't want the men to work because they don't want to pay the retroactive wages" provided under the agreement that extended the old contract between the union and the operators until April 30.

O'Leary said the UMW was trying "to get all of the men back to work as quickly as possible" but that he had received some reports that the operators were discouraging the miners.

The solid fuels administration said soft coal production yesterday was only 65 per cent normal. Much of the slump was traced to the Easter holiday week end and confusion among the miners over extension of the old contract beyond its original expiration date Saturday midnight.

Koiso Joins Tojo On Sidelines

Jap Leaders Quit In Face Of Fast-Approaching Allied Invasion

LONDON, April 5—Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso and the Japanese cabinet resigned today with a virtual admission that they were powerless to halt the American advance on their homeland.

Japan's second wartime cabinet fell only four days after American invasion forces stormed ashore on Okinawa Island, 330 miles southwest of the enemy's home islands, against almost non-existent opposition.

The Japanese board of information announced that the resignations were decided upon "in view of gravity of the war situation and in order to bring a more powerful cabinet" into office.

The decision was taken at an emergency cabinet session at 9:50 a.m. Tokyo time, the Tokyo radio said. Koiso proceeded to the imperial palace and presented the resignation "en bloc" to Emperor Hirohito at 10:30 a.m.

The Koiso cabinet went into office eight and a half months ago after the overthrow of the extremist government of Gen. Hideki Tojo in a political crisis touched off by the loss of Saipan in the Marianas.

Koiso's ministers, mostly conservative elder army, navy and business leaders, had been expected to rally the Japanese people and armed forces for new exertions to stem the Allied march toward Japan.

But instead disaster followed disaster. The cabinet weathered the furor caused by the superfortress offensive against Japan, the invasion of the Philippines and even the loss of Iwo Jima, only 570 miles south of Tokyo, to American Marines last month. The successful invasion of Okinawa was the final straw, however.

Who will succeed Koiso is problematical. Koiso, like Tojo, was a product of the ruthless Kwangtung army in Manchuria. (Continued on Page Two)

MINERS SLOWLY RETURN TO JOBS AFTER HOLIDAY

WASHINGTON, April 5—A United Mine Workers official charged today that soft coal operators were partly to blame for the current striking in the soft coal fields.

UMW Vice President John O'Leary said that some operators "don't want the men to work because they don't want to pay the retroactive wages" provided under the agreement that extended the old contract between the union and the operators until April 30.

O'Leary said the UMW was trying "to get all of the men back to work as quickly as possible" but that he had received some reports that the operators were discouraging the miners.

Gen. Rose Killed

MAJ. Gen. Maurice Rose of Denver, Colo., almost legendary commander of the fast-rolling Third Armored division which spearheaded the American drive from the Roer river deep into the inner Reich was killed while surrendering his weapons after being captured by a German Tiger tank at Paderborn.

VIENNA UNDER SOVIET SIEGE

Red Units Fight Through Outskirts Of Historic Austrian Capital

WASHINGTON, April 5—Russian troops and tanks laid siege to Vienna along a 50-mile arc today. Vanguards were fighting through the southeastern outskirts of the Austrian capital.

Massed Russian artillery and Red air force bombers pumped ton after ton of explosives into the burning city, which Adolf Hitler has ordered defended to the death to protect the back door to Germany.

Vienna's last big outer fortress, the Slovakian capital of Bratislava, 25 miles to the east, was toppled yesterday by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's second Ukrainian army group.

Malinovsky's forces rushed on through the Bratislava gap between the Danube and lake Neusiedler for frontal smash at Vienna while Marshal Fedor I. Tolbukhin's third Ukrainian army group closed in on the city from the southwest, south and southeast.

'IKE' WARNS GERMANS MAY NEVER GIVE UP

Allied Leader Does Not Expect Clean Cut Nazi Surrender

LONG FIGHT PREDICTED

Guerilla Warfare Will Force Use Of 'Very Large Number Of Troops'

WASHINGTON, April 5—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of Allied armies in Europe, has written President Roosevelt that there probably "will never be a clean cut military surrender" of the German armies, the White House disclosed today.

Eisenhower said that if the present situation continues, V-E day (victory in Europe) will be signalized only by an Allied proclamation and not by any definite collapse of German resistance.

He foresees "guerilla warfare which would require for its suppression a very large number of troops."

The further the European campaign progresses, Eisenhower wrote Mr. Roosevelt, "the more probable it appears that there will never be a clean cut military surrender of the forces on the western front."

"Our experience to date is that even when formations as small as a division are disrupted," he said, "their fragments continue to fight until surrounded. This attitude if continued will likely mean that a V-E day will come about only by a proclamation on our part rather than any definite or decisive collapse or surrender of German resistance."

Projecting this idea further, it would mean that eventually all the area in which fragments of the German army, particularly the paratrooper, panzer and SS elements, may be located, will have to be taken by the application of the threat of force. This would lead into form of guerilla warfare which would require for its suppression a very large number of troops."

Eisenhower added that if the German government or any group that could take political control would make a national surrender "then all armed bodies remaining in the field would, in my opinion, no longer be classed as soldiers of a recognized government but would occupy the status of brigands or pirates."

"Since, if captured under these conditions, they would not be entitled to protection afforded by the laws of war," he said, "it is my conviction that, except for extreme

Super Highway Lends Itself To Two-Way Traffic

NAZI prisoners of war walk in the center island of the Autobahn, Germany's super highway, near Gelsen, Germany, as vehicles of the Sixth Armored division of the U.S. Third Army move on into the heart of the Reich. The captured Nazis are being marched to prisoner camps in the rear. This is a U. S. Army Signal Corps radiophoto.

Long lines of German military transport jammed the roads east of the Weser, even beyond Hanover, 136 miles from Berlin, and it appeared that the enemy intended to make only a token fight for the river crossings.

Third army tanks ran riot through the German rear of a front of perhaps 100 miles, threatening an imminent drive into Czechoslovakia on their southern flank that would cut Germany in two.

The Americans were moving swiftly into the vital rear supply areas of the German armies drawn up on the eastern front—now 170 miles or less beyond the Third army's vanguard—and resistance everywhere appeared to be falling apart.

In Harz Mountains

Radio Luxembourg said the northern wing of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army had broken into the western edge of the Harz mountains, indicating an advance of more than 40 miles northeastward from their last reported positions near Kassel.

Fifty miles south of the Harz range, Patton sent hundreds of tanks stabbing through the Thuringian forests against the weakest opposition. The Americans captured Muelhausen, 136 miles southwest of Berlin, and were closing fast on Erfurt, 130 miles from the enemy capital.

Far to the north, the American Ninth army's second armored division broke loose on a 20-mile run east of the Teutoburger forest to reach the Pied Piper town of Hamelin on the west bank of the Weser river. There they were 22 miles south-southwest of Hannover, Germany's 12th city, and 157 miles due west of Berlin.

Fifth Reaches Weser

The U. S. Fifth armored division broke through to the Weser at Minden, 22 air-line miles north of Hamelin, 32 miles west of Hannover, and 174 miles west of Berlin. (Continued on Page Two)

NINTH MASSED FOR DRIVE FROM WESER RIVER

Germans Not Expected To Make Strong Stand For Stream Crossings

A winding 40-mile stretch of the Weser's west bank extending from north of Minden to south of Hamelin was in American hands and front dispatches telling of collapsed German resistance indicated that a full-scale drive across the river was impending.

Beyond the Weser, the northern road to Berlin lay wide open for a stretch of almost 100 miles back to the Elbe river.

British airborne troops raced 36 miles east of captured Osnabrueck to join the Americans at Minden, and wheeled northward seven miles to Hille. Unconfirmed reports said the Tommies crossed the 80-yard-wide Weser in a strike for Bremen, 49 miles to the northwest.

Resistance Melts

German resistance was melting away before the north-bound British and on the Canadian First army front farther to the east, where dominion troops won a new crossing of the Twente canal and advanced six miles beyond to capture Almelo.

The fall of Almelo cut one of the two main railway lines still open to the German 25th army in western Holland.

United Press War Correspondent Richard D. McMillan reported that the British-Canadian advance was going ahead so rapidly that many German towns were untouched. At some points the British rounded up newly-arrived German troops from Denmark who still were waiting to be issued weapons.

The sudden German collapse west of the Weser river pointed up reports brought back by Allied fliers that the Germans were abandoning all of Holland and northwestern Germany and falling back for a last stand behind the Elbe river, which loops back within 43 miles of Bremen.

Headquarters spokesmen cautioned, however, that there has as yet been no definite evidence of a Nazi evacuation on that scale, beyond the aerial reconnaissance reports of a large German transport movement eastward from Holland and the Bremen area.

The combined British and American forces at Minden were only 52 miles south of Bremen and 97 miles southwest of Hamburg, Germany's two largest ports. They were in position to drive across the Weser and northward against the seaports or east for Hanover and Berlin.

Other British forces to the west were advancing rapidly northward on both sides of the Ems river within 50 miles of the Ems estuary.

Canadian First army troops on the extreme northwestern flank of the Allied line slugged their way deep into central Holland against stiffening opposition. Late dispatches said the Canadians were across the lower Rhine east and west of Arnhem 22 miles or less from the Zuider Zee.

The Third army group broke into the outskirts of Vienna after capturing Zweiflitzing, only two miles southeast, yesterday. The advance carried seven miles inside the greater Vienna administrative district and cut the Munich-lake Neusiedler super-highway.

Hellingenkreuz, 10 miles southwest of Vienna, Gaaden, eight miles southwest, and Baden, 10 miles south, also fell to Tolbukhin's troops. Hellingenkreuz lies nine miles below the Vienna-Munich railway and highway.

Advances of up to 50 miles were reported along a 50-mile front from lake Neusiedler to the Alpine foothills.

The Second army group pressed from Bratislava to the north with 11 miles of the Morava valley route to Brno and Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia.

Two columns crossed the small Carpathian mountain chain. One seized Moravia, seven miles northwest of Bratislava, and the other Rarhok, 21 miles north and 55 miles southeast of Brno.

Bratislava, hub of 13 railways and highways in the southwest corner of the German puppet state of Slovakia, fell after sharp fighting. A city of 160,000 population, it was the last of Germany's Balkan satellite capitals to be seized.

Though no final decisions have been made on the bases, it is likely that the Navy will seek to make use of many of the atolls it has taken in the former Japanese Mandate Islands.

Some of the better bases would be Eniwetok of Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands; the Palau and Truk in the Carolines; and the Ryuku and Mariana Islands. The latter would be highly useful as sea and air bases, especially because of their proximity to Japan.

Funeral services for Mrs. Russell Herron will be Friday at 1 p. m. at the Church of Christ in Christian Union with the Rev. O. L. Ferguson and the Rev. A. E. Edgar officiating. Burial in charge of the Denbaugh funeral home will be in Forest cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Thursday evening.

TILTON STANT STRICKEN ON HOLDERMAN FARM

Tilton Stant, 67, dropped dead Wednesday about 7:30 p. m. at the cross roads near the Lewis Holderman farm, Pickaway township. Mr. Stant's death was caused by acute myocarditis, according to report of Dr. Lloyd Jonnes, Pickaway county coroner.

Mr. Stant, who lived with a daughter, Mrs. William Hardisty, of Circleville, had been employed at the Holderman farm for the last five years. He is survived by two other daughters, Martha and Betty Stant, Washington township.

Mr. Stant was a native of Wilmotport.

Funeral arrangements in charge of the Denbaugh funeral home have not been completed.

ably destroyed over Hong Kong without loss to the American forces.

Mitchell medium bombers again razed Formosa, hitting rail transport targets and an alcohol plant near Tainan which was left burning fiercely, while naval patrol planes sank a destroyer escort, a 10,000-ton tanker and six freighters in strikes from Shanghai to French Indo-China.

"Apparently we have reached the outposts of enemy defenses in the south, where a force of as many as 60,000 Japanese may be concealed," United Press Correspondent Edward L. Thomas reported from an advanced command post on Okinawa.

He said Japanese strong points appeared to be scattered through the hills around the villages of Kaniku, Tsuwa and Tanbaru. Approaching them, the Americans overran several preliminary lines of resistance in advances of 500 to 1,500 yards down the 3 1/2 mile wide Isthmus separating central and southern Okinawa.

The hills command much of southern Okinawa. Troops pushing through a misty rain toward one 600-foot height guarding the approaches to Shuri ran into heavy artillery, machine gun and mortar fire.

For the first time since the invasion Sunday, heavy Japanese artillery and mortar fire was screaming into the American front lines. The enemy appeared determined to hold Machinato and Yonabaru airfields. Both within a mile and a half to two miles of the advancing Americans.

The veteran 32nd regiment of the seventh division on the eastern end of the line above Naha smashed the first organized resistance of the campaign yesterday with the capture of a ridge above Ishado on Nakagusuku bay and of Arnhem 22 miles or less from the Zuider Zee.

An advance to the Zuider Zee would split Holland and trap perhaps 50,000 Germans along the V-bomb coast to the west.

Another 150,000 Germans were pocketed in the Ruhr basin to the south. American First and Ninth army troops were grinding steadily into the trap from all sides and there was no sign of a major German attempt to break out.

The Navy's position on the Pacific bases will be made known to the White House when its recommendations are submitted concerning the strength of the postwar fleet. Secretary of Navy James Forrestal has said such a report would be submitted in due time.

Though no final decisions have been made on the bases, it is likely that the Navy will seek to make use of many of the atolls it has taken in the former Japanese Mandate Islands.

Norman Rowland Says Soldiers Want To Finish Job, Then Come Home

Cpl. Norman Rowland, son of J. E. Rowland, Route 1, Orient, expresses his surprise at some of the things said at home about the soldiers in a letter answering some questions asked by a niece.

Naomi Scowden, Marion, high school student wrote to her uncle, Cpl. Rowland, asking him to answer some questions as the result of remarks made by one of her teachers concerning the attitude of men in overseas service. Cpl. Rowland will have been overseas three years April 20. He is serving as an airplane mechanic, a specialist in ignition.

Cpl. Rowland says that servicemen want to come home but first "we want to accomplish what we set out to do."

His letter follows: "Dear Niece: I received your letter last night and it afforded an interesting topic of conversation. I talked it over with some of the boys and we were all very disappointed to find that a high school teacher would plant such cynical thoughts in the minds of his students.

"It's our job to win the war and the diploma's job to make the peace, but it is yours and your classmates' job to keep the peace. So dismiss that cynicism from your minds and believe me, that we have more important stakes in than coming home.

"Of course we want to come home, but first we want to accomplish what we set out to do."

"Your science teacher didn't see the French hostages, both men and women, dug out of bomb holes, or the Italian hostages that were sealed in a cave, or the American Red Cross packages burned; or he has never tried to eat when people of all ages from children four or five to aged men and women without enough clothes to keep warm, are standing around hoping that you will have a few scraps left in your mess kit. He has never seen teenage girls selling themselves for a can of "C" rations to feed themselves and their families, or mothers begging for food and clothing for their babies; or the destruction of homes and projects that represent life savings.

"Europeans are people, just like you or your boy friend or the girl down the street, your science teacher or your parents. And they are just as sensitive to pain, grief, love, cold and hunger.

"These are the things that are left in the wake of the German armies, these are the things we can't allow to happen in America. That is why we are over here, to put an end to all this suffering and to try to prevent it in the future.

"As for pledging allegiance, I can't speak for all Americans, but I can speak for 11 million of us. Nine soldiers out of 10 have a lump in their throats and many have tears in their eyes when they salute Old Glory at retreat.

"I'm not optimistic enough to believe that there will never be another war but we can all work, hope and pray that we may have not only one nation, but one world indivisible with liberty and justice for all."

Cpl. Rowland has a brother, T-5 in the South Pacific.

'IKE' IDOL OF FAN MAIL FRONT

Allied Leader Receives Thousands Of Letters, Gift Packages

BY SGT. JULES B. GRAD
Stars and Stripes Staff Writer for combined press and radio

SUPREME COMMANDER'S HEADQUARTERS, April 5—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the new "idol of the fan-mail front," now receives almost as many letters as Frank Sinatra.

From every corner of the free world, people write him for autographs and pictures.

One little boy asked for a "genuine Tiger tank."

Hundreds of letters pour into his headquarters every week. They come by airmail and V-mail. Scores are rain-drenched and caked with mud from frontline troops in Germany. Some are penny postcards.

But no matter whom they're from, they all get the same personal attention. The supreme commander of the Allied expeditionary force takes time off from the important job of running a war to answer each one, even if it means working an extra hour at night.

The general has many steady correspondents like Mary Louise Koehnen Dayton, O., who is one of his favorites. She "adopted" him when she read in the papers that "we should adopt boys in the service."

Because of the thousands of requests for autographs, Eisenhower decided then was the time to make a definite policy.

He said he would send autographs to anyone in the armed forces who requested them, but only to civilians who were actively helping the Allies win the war.

Eisenhower probably receives more gifts from well-wishers than any other general in the world. The packages usually contain cigars, cigarettes, gum, toothbrushes and paste and home-made gingerbread. All except those of a personal nature or from old friends, are given to hospitals for combat casualty troops.

Mrs. Phyllis A. Hull, of Hamilton, Ont., recently sent the general a hand-knit sweater with "Ike" embroidered over the pocket. The general wears it under his blouse.

Mrs. Martha Selick, Plainfield, N. J., regularly sends packages to the general but they all go by special messenger to hospital wards with a note describing who sent it and her address.

America and her "Underground"

We were sitting around after chores the other night talking about the progress of the war. Chad Davis was saying how, in spite of Germany's defeat, there was still the German underground to cope with.

"I don't worry about them," says Sober Hoskins. "So long as we got our own underground in working order."

"What do you mean—our underground?" says Chad. And Sober points out to the fields. "There it is," he says, "under that soil lies the most important weapon that we've got. America can crops—from American fields—strengthening our position overseas in a way no other underground can shake."

From where I sit, Chad's absolutely right. Whether it's for the glass of beer that cheers a tired soldier's spirits, or the bread that feeds our armies and our allies, every bit of grain that American farmers harvest is a part of America's great strength.

FROM WAR TO BUSINESS

WE have heard much about the number of servicemen who hope to go into business for themselves after discharge. Some businessmen have been concerned about the possible failures resulting. The War Department and other organizations, which have inquired into this, have turned up some interesting facts.

Perhaps seven percent, or some 550,000 soldiers, intend to start out for themselves, and four percent more have "tentative plans." During the first two years of the war, it is estimated that 530,000 small businesses ceased to operate, or just about enough to leave room for the veterans who want to try it.

So far as actual performance is concerned, the questioning of veterans already returned to civilian life reveals considerable caution. Most of them feel that circumstances are too uncertain, and present difficulties of administration too great, to make them want to start now. Instead, they are going back to school, or into paid jobs, in order to learn and gain experience.

Furthermore, very few of those who are opening up now have applied for GI loans. Their own savings, or the help of families and friends, is enough to carry them. So the outlook all around seems reasonably hopeful.

NAZI WOLVES

THE Nazis, who promised for years to bring civilization and light to the world, are at last convicted out of their own mouths. They have given to bands of guerrillas, organized "to make collaboration with the Allies impossible," the name of "were-wolves."

The guerrilla warfare has long been expected. The significance lies in the name they have adopted. According to the dictation, a were-wolf is "in old superstition, a human being turned into a wolf while retaining human intelligence."

It used to be a common example of a disease called schizophrasia, or split personality. A patient possessed of that form of insanity sometimes believed himself capable of becoming a wolf. In old wives' tales the were-wolf was usually believed to crave human blood, and to kill for it.

So now the Nazis, in their death-throes, show themselves in their true colors.

Hitler is reported to be having a special meeting at Berchtesgaden of high-up Nazis, both civilian and military, to decide what they had better do next. They needn't worry. Ike will probably decide for them.

Up to a morning of more rain. One should become accustomed to it, I suppose, but I have had enough, at least for the time being. Heard a shot in the distance and noted a dog really leaving those parts. Some sheep killing hereabouts and did wonder whether the poach had been caught in the act. If so his days are really numbered for farmers have no patience with sheep killers. Watched him out of sight and then went in to coffee, after which did crank the wagon and start to town.

Came a letter from Doc Bales who has had a very successful shell collecting season in the Marathon, Fla., vicinity and who is now enroute home by way of Miami, Boynton, Pass-a-Grille, St. Pete, and Gainesville, hoping to arrive late in the month. Doc is one of the nation's outstanding shell collectors and when he says he has had a "very successful" season that really means something. Probably coming up with some new ones he will have the honor of naming and adding to his already long personal list.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WAshington, April 5—The yarn they are passing around about the resignation of James F. Byrnes as assistant president is that he was angry about having been turned down for the vice-presidency by Mr. Roosevelt at the last Chicago convention.

That is rather stale anger. But about a week before the President made the announcement of the resignation, certain senators heard he was angry again. They did not know about what—or did not say.

He had just returned recently from the Yalta conference, and if he was angry about that it did not show. As a matter of fact, Mr. Byrnes' face rarely shows anything. It is the best poker countenance in town, they say.

He could also possibly have been angry about the unpopular reaction to his ban on horse racing and after-midnight saloons, in certain quarters at least. That could not be true. Objecting quarters certainly did not include the office of the chief executive.

Byrnes won his battle over Mayor La Guardia on the night club closing with some adroit pressure from the Army and Navy by the simple process of having servicemen get up and leave night clubs at the midnight hour.

Anyone who remained was thereby placed in the position of being unpatriotic, and not even the mayor's friends, the night club owners, could stand that kind of a flanking maneuver. They quit their battle forthwith and left the mayor shrieking—but alone.

As a follow-up to the other bans came recent announcements that all would be withdrawn on V-E day, and that the army man in the Byrnes office who inspired them was moved to France to serve out the war. There is nothing in this picture but happiness at both ends of the White House, the east wing where Mr. Byrnes operated and the west wing where the President worked.

You will recall, however, that Mr. Roosevelt's reply to the resignation letter, said he was "familiar" with Mr. Byrnes' "persistent" efforts to resign. That was plain, polite sarcasm, lending more than credence to the inside senate information.

Furthermore Byrnes acted in obvious haste on his promise to stay on to V-E day. He anticipated it by an indefinite period, with his announcement, although agreeing to stay on until then.

The only anger Byrnes has expressed to his friends that I know has been against the march of events toward socialism or radicalism or whatever you want to call the movement on the march. He could well have come away from Yalta with some reflections on how little we won there.

Practically everyone is a little "sore" about that, but perhaps more displeased that Stalin has not seen fit, even so, to honor the San Francisco conference, the air conference and many other administration plans with cooperation.

Byrnes' failure to "clear it with Sidney" for the vice-presidency had the political foundation of his resistance to the left wing. This is the fundamental cause for his resignation. Whatever anger arose, works out some 400 acres of his farm will eventually be irrigated.

Asked Bruce about that big poultry house he erected last year, a two story structure 116 feet long by 20 feet wide. Each floor houses 500 hens, and since December 1 they have produced 96,000 eggs. That is slightly more than 86 percent production. A lot of eggs. A far cry from the old pin-money poultry practice.

Bruce is a good farmer, one who is constantly seeking improvement in production. Such a man is a real asset to the county. He helps point the way and someone has to do that even though it too often means personal financial loss.

Passed the time of day with Ward Robinson, in from his farm. Wearing muddy overshoes, overalls, an old jacket and slouch hat. Hardly the Ward in appearance who for so many years operated the Circle City Dairy.

Chatted with Bruce Stevenson who is prepared to flood-irrigate ten acres of hybrid corn this year in an effort to produce 200 bushels to the acre. An experiment, he says, but he is optimistic and when the four-time Pickaway champion is optimistic about anything regarding corn his optimism really means something. He already has raised 165 bushels to the acre without irrigation.

On the way home stopped in at Boyd Stout's office to view architect's water colors of the proposed fairgrounds buildings. One projects the county field house, another from above shows the layout including the field house, stock barns, grandstand and race track. Interesting. Attractive.

DIET AND HEALTH

Effects of a New Diet Upon High Blood Pressure

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

IN persons with high blood pressure, it is not unusual for damage to the kidneys to occur as a result. A condition called chronic nephritis, which is a chronic inflammation of the kidneys, often may develop. A variety of treatments has been utilized for this condition of high blood pressure with chronic kidney disease.

Recently, a new type of diet has been employed, and it seems to have met with a great deal of success. The diet consists of rice, fruit juices, sugar, and preparations to supply iron and all of the necessary vitamins which the doctor will prescribe.

As the patient's condition improves, the physician modifies the diet by adding vegetables (with the exception of beans and peas) eggs, and small amounts of beef, liver, or chicken.

Unless the patient is informed of the importance of this diet, there may be certain objections to it. To begin with, it is monotonous. They may complain that it does not taste good, and it must be continued for a long period of time before results are obtained.

Frequently, patients with high blood pressure have bleeding into the back part of the eyeball, known as retinal hemorrhage. Furthermore, there may be swelling of the tissue around the point where the nerve of the eye enters the eyeball.

It was noted that with the rice diet elevated above normal. Furthermore, it was noted that in many of the patients who had enlarged hearts, a decrease in the size of the heart resulted.

Of course a person on a diet of this type must be kept under the watchful eye of the physician because the diet does not supply all of the necessary food parts. The physician can make such changes in the diet as he deems necessary in light of the patient's reactions to it.

Tomorrow, Dr. Bundesen will discuss "Sinus Infections."

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

CITY Council passed a resolution offered by Frank A. Lynch to investigate the possibilities of sponsoring several National Youth Administration projects in Circleville.

More than 300 Circleville and Pickaway county sportsmen, all of them members of the Pickaway County Farmer's and Sportsman's association, enjoyed the annual fish dinner and program at Memorial hall.

Mrs. Meinhardt M. Crites and sister, Miss Virginia Baughn, West Franklin street, were guests at a luncheon at the home of Miss Alice Kimball, Springfield.

10 YEARS AGO

George L. Green, South Court street, was a regular member of the police department, his confirmation being unanimously voted by council.

Thomas D. Gephart, member of the Pickaway county Democratic committee and acting postmaster at Williamsport for 15 months, was appointed regular postmaster of that village.

John 'Doggy' Ward, Jr., returned from Washington, D. C., and announced that he had been called there to receive appointment as special investigator for the Bottled Soft Drink Code authority.

25 YEARS AGO

Mrs. James T. Pickering, of Lancaster, who is prepared to flood-irrigate ten acres of hybrid corn this year in an effort to produce 200 bushels to the acre. An experiment, he says, but he is optimistic and when the four-time Pickaway champion is optimistic about anything regarding corn his optimism really means something. He already has raised 165 bushels to the acre without irrigation.

Charles E. Hawkins, Akron, general manager of the American Straw Board company, announced the big Circleville mill was to run on three shifts, making an eight-hour day for all men.

In London, England, clothes of every period from the 15th century to the present day are worn as regular costumes.

HELEN COMES HOME

by Watkins E. Wright

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

ZOE WALKED slowly back across the field to the house. She remembered once again that farewell scene she had shared with Mike Waterman. "I've decided to settle in Washington for good—go on living here even after the war, with trips elsewhere, of course—vacations and all that," he had said. Yes, she thought, and the woman who was married to him would share that pleasant, exciting life. Mike's wife wouldn't have to plod across a muddy field to argue with him—beg him to join her on a week-end party. "Mrs. Michael Waterman, Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C." . . . Mrs. Paul Wentworth, A Farm, Lakeview, N. C., R. R. 4.

What a contrast in addresses!

"I hope," Philip said, "that they will give us time enough to get all decorated."

"How do you mean?" Helen asked.

"Gosh, child," Philip laughed, "haven't you seen the newsreels and the pictures in the papers? How shipyards and factories are all hung with flags and bunting—with a band playing?"

"You mean we're going to have a band?"

"You bet we are."

"If all the members," said Miss Minerva, "haven't been drafted. I'm afraid what members are left are such old-timers they'll have to come on crutches and in roller chairs."

"But that much more impressive," said Philip. "Especially with Mr. Carlson leading—a veteran of the other world war."

Aggie said: "I knew something would happen if I came down to work for the plant."

"You don't mean you're taking all the credit, do you?" said Helen.

Aggie chuckled. "Well, why not?" she said. "You didn't get the 'E' until I did start to work, did you?"

"Maybe Aggie is luck," said Philip. "Come over here, Aggie, and let me touch you."

"Luck, my eye!" said Miss Minerva. "Hard work's done it. That, and fighting priorities and threatening strikes." She shook her head slowly. "I shall frame the letter and pray that soon I shall be manufacturing axe handles."

"How about your speech?" said Philip.

"You can help me with that one evening when you're free. I don't want it to be too flowery—not too much like a firecracker chat."

"And," said Helen, "for heaven's sake, don't talk down to people."

"You won't have to worry about that," said Miss Minerva. "The workers deserve most of the credit—and I shall tell them so."

Philip got up to go.

"Why don't you stay to supper?" said Miss Minerva.

"Thanks. But I've missed too many meals at home here of late," Philip replied. "My son will begin to think he's a wavy orphan for a fact."

"I tell you what do," said Miss Minerva. "Come in Sunday for noon-day dinner and bring Dick with you. I promised him he could explore on little. And while he's doing that, you and I can be writing my speech."

"It's a date," said Philip. He turned to Helen. "Come on," he said, "and drive out with me. Aunt Dulcy's having fricassee chicken and dumplings."

"You make my mouth water," said Helen. "But she's not prepared for company."

"Aunt Dulcy's always prepared for company," said Philip. "Besides if you don't come, Dick and I will be eating fricassee chicken all day tomorrow."

"Do you mind, Aunt Minerva?" Helen said. "Can you and Aggie spare my company for a while?"

"Go along with you," said Miss Minerva. "Aggie and I'll play a little two-handed rummy. She's been teaching me a new way to play it."

"Maybe the two of you would like to come along also," said Philip.

"Thanks," said Aggie. "Me for something comfortable and a quiet evening with Miss Minerva. She's spoiling me. I don't know how I'll ever manage to live in my own home when the tenants move out."

"Don't let 'em move out," said Miss Minerva. "This house is big enough for all of us. Besides, your ration book comes in handy. Zeke says with his book, and our three, he can get along splendidly without stinting too much."

"It's silly of you," said Helen, "to move into the cottage. Bank the rent, or buy bonds."

Philip said: "A good idea, Aggie." He took Helen's hand. "If I can ever persuade this girl here

AMERICA'S TOWN MEETING TRADE WAR DEBATED

Are Britain and America Headed for a Trade War after Victory?

That question will be discussed by a quartet of experts on international trade, when "America's Town Meeting" broadcasts from Atlanta, Ga., Thursday. This broadcast will be the first in the program's spring tour, which will take it to New Orleans, Birmingham, San Francisco and Kansas City. Sen. Owen Brewster, (R., Me.) and Tom Linder, Agriculture Commissioner for the State of Georgia and president of the National Farm Committee, speak for the affirmative in the discussion. Dr. J. Raymond Walsh, research director of the CIO Political Action Committee, will be one of the two speakers for the negative. George V. Denny, Jr., is moderator.

DANE CLARK IN "SUSPENSE"

Dane Clark, featured in the current film, "Hollywood Canteen," plays the starring role on "Suspense," in its broadcast Thursday. He will be heard in an eerie tale by one of radio's horror writers.

"WEAPONS FOR VICTORY"

Bombs of various types, their development and uses, will be described on the Army Service Forces program, "Weapons for Victory," Thursday. How Army Ordnance has developed many types of bombs for many purposes, ranging from high explosive missiles with tremendous blasting power, to bombs which carry just enough explosive to burst the casing and scatter propaganda leaflets, will be told in dramatic form.

DONATES 70-YEAR SCARF

BRAZIL, Ind.—The yarn may be old—70 years old at that—but it's still serviceable. At least that is what John F. Cross decided when he gave a knitted red scarf he had worn for 70 years to be ripped up and used for yarn for the 4th afghan Brazil war mothers knit for sick and disabled soldiers.

Run the carpet sweeper with smooth, even strokes. Do not use more pressure than is necessary. Don't bang sweeper against furniture; don't let it stand over a hot air register. Empty the dustpan after each use. Storing sweeper by hanging on front or back of the sweeper part, will cause dirt to drop onto the brush, and thence to the carpet when you sweep.

For safety's sake, stand on a dry floor and have your hands dry when you connect the plug of your washing machine. Keep the outlet in good repair; keep the cord clean, dry and away from sun, heat and oil—and never roll the washer over it.

A doll's shoe belonging to a six-year-old girl in Kansas City, was sent all the way to Europe to the child's serviceman father to be mended. The father, a cobbler in civilian life, returned the shoe as good as new.

Summer Ends Suddenly With Snow and Cold Weather Predicted

FROST MAY RUIN FRUIT, GARDENS IN CITY, COUNTY

Temperatures Drop From 72 To 35 As Winter Weather Follows Showers

Circleville residents had better call the dry cleaners and get back those overcoats, take the old red flannels out of the moth balls and prepare for a curtain call by winter as weather forecasters predict "much colder weather, probably."

FROST PREDICTED

Roy Hawkes, local weather observer, was informed by the Columbus weather bureau Thursday that there would be a heavy frost Thursday night with a low of 28 degrees to be reached here. Warmer weather is predicted for Saturday.

Freezing temperatures are likely to occur by Friday morning, the weatherman said, and at the same time warned of frost.

Temperatures dropped from a high of 72 degrees Wednesday to a low at 7 a.m. Thursday of 35 degrees as high winds blew in cold weather after showers of the last few days. The change in the weather was more noticeable because of the extreme warm temperatures that have been experienced for the last few weeks. The weather was colder over the same period last year but was not so apparent because there was no out of season heat wave. High temperature recorded for April 5 last year was 36 degrees and the low was 22 degrees.

Snow fell in the streets of Circleville Thursday morning at 6:30 a.m. and again, for about fifteen minutes, around 9 a.m.

Smudge pots are expected to be placed in orchards throughout the county to protect many of the fruit trees that are already in bloom. Commercial and victory gardeners are placing papers and cones over plants in gardens to protect early plants.

Farmers already suffering from heavy rains that have flooded lands and made Spring plowing impossible and also from shortages of mechanical equipment and lack of manpower are further harassed by the impending frost predicted by the weather forecaster. Precipitation of .34 inches was recorded Wednesday at the Circleville weather bureau. The Scioto river, however, dropped from 11.53 feet Wednesday to 10.28 feet Thursday.

OHIO REVENUE FROM BEER, FAG TAXES DECREASE

COLUMBUS, April 5—Revenues from Ohio's cigarette and beer and malt taxes during the first quarter of 1945 dropped 3.7 per cent from collections during the comparable period of 1944, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today.

Ebright said collections from the two taxes during the first quarter of this year totalled $6,133,671 as compared with $6,367,343 in 1944.

The only two divisions of the beer and malt tax to show increases were the malt crown tax which increased from $828,123 in 1944 to $1,110,125 in 1945 and the beer crown tax which increased from $148,731 to $266,680.

Cigaret tax during the first quarter of the year were $2,082,997, a decrease of 16.9 per cent from the $2,50,749 collected during the first quarter of 1944. The malt beverage tax yielded $1,951.
